SERVING AT DIOSPI SUYANA HOSPITAL IN CURAHUASI, PERU

ISSUE TWO

Peru has mountains as tall as 22,000 feet. It is a country filled with great beauty.

Christ-centered Missions

What is actually going on in Peru?

Diospi Suyana's website goes to great effort to describe the work they are doing in Peru. The following is a short description of the work.

What is the focus of Diospi Suyana Hospital? Diospi Suyana exists to serve the mission of Christ to the Quechua people of Peru and to accomplish the following objectives:

Improvement of medical care for the Indians and the impoverished rural population through outpatient and inpatient treatment, training of native Indian nurses and "Promotores de Salud" (community nurses), cooperation with existing government medical facilities, patient education about prevention of communicable diseases, and affordable medical care for the poor sponsored by charitable donations

The spread of the gospel of Jesus Christ in cooperation with native churches through hospital chaplains, mass media, the testimony of missionaries, and services and Christian events at our amphitheater with 4,000 seats

Enhancement of the social status of the Quechua culture through the choice of an Quechua name for the hospital, the treatment

*"Truly I tell you, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did for me."
Matthew 25:40*

of patients with the utmost respect, the use of the Quechua language as a means of communication (at least at a basic level), and the training of indigenous co-workers

Kids' Viewpoint

David

Before we go to Costa Rica, I want to do lots of things here that I can't do there. I want to go to Six Flags, visit my friends, and speak English. This school year, I learned that long division isn't as scary as I thought it was. In BSF I learned about Paul's missionary journeys. I learned that God can transform me.

Peter

I would like to see a sloth while we are in Costa Rica. I am looking forward to meeting new friends. I am glad the school year is over because I'd rather be homeschooled.

Annie

I think the food in Peru is going to be weird. I heard that they eat guinea pigs in Peru. I do not want to try guinea pig. I do not want to cook my gerbils, Mary and Missy. I hope I can still get pizza and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

Sarah

I am going to play "family" in Spanish in Costa Rica, and I am going to play hide and seek in Peru. I am going to speak to everyone in Spanish. "Uno, dos, tres, cinco, cuatros." (We've got some work to do!)

Cool Story of the Week: Answered Prayers about School

God is bring some much needed clarity regarding the kids' schooling next year in Costa Rica.

Our concern to help the kids transition well and yet the priority to learn Spanish left us in a quandary: throw them into a Spanish-speaking school? Let them go to the English-speaking school? Was there another option? It felt like we could not get much clear information until the language school that Will will be attending gave us the email address of some students who are sending their kids to the Costa Rican public school.

I sent the Dohertys an email and they replied within an hour with a Skype address. Amazing! In between the initial exchange and our Skype appointment, Will visited the blog address at the bottom of the email. This family was learning Spanish to move to Cusco, Peru. During their last visit, they had gone to see a pastor friend in Curahuasi and visited Diospi Suyana hospital! What an astounding "coincidence." God's loving kindness brought tears to my eyes.

An information rich conversation ensued and we learned that we cannot send our kids to any Spanish speaking schools until February, when their new school year begins. This will give our family time to adjust a bit, do some intensive language tutoring, and check out our school options first hand. "Cast all your anxiety on Him because He cares for you." I Peter 5:7 Thank you, Lord!

The Caireavan Moves

What are you doing this summer? We are getting ready to move internationally. The whole house falls into one of three categories: junk; things we'll need in Peru, to be stored and shipped next year; things to pack or ship for language school in Costa Rica. (too much of the first category!) Please pray us to have wisdom about how to do this well and for God to help us use our time efficiently in these short months ahead. If you're in the Dallas area, be looking out for the big garage sale in August!
